

GME AND APER PRESENT THEIR GUIDE TO THE RENEWABLES MARKET

An easy-to-use and lean guide, whose main aim is to describe the modes of access to the renewables market in a straightforward but comprehensive way.

These are the goals of the publication issued jointly by “Gestore del mercato elettrico SpA” (GME) - the company in charge of organising and economically managing the Electricity Market and Environmental Markets, including the Green Certificates Market - and the “Associazione Produttori Energia da fonti Rinnovabili” (Aper – association of renewable power producers).

The guide is the result of the work of two teams (GME and Aper), which shared their skills and expertise. In a clear and detailed way, the guide gives insight into: i) national legislation governing the sale of power generated from renewables; ii) support mechanisms and their features (Green Certificates, all-in tariff); and iv) opportunities that the scheme offers to operators to sell their electricity: “ritiro dedicato” (purchase agreement with GSE) and “scambio sul posto” (net metering).

The publication is intended to give support to the activity of renewables operators and to allow non-specialists to get an understanding of a constantly evolving sector.
